New York, October 15, 2015—INK Miami Art Fair is proud to celebrate its 10th Anniversary in 2015 with several major event highlights, including the first INK Miami Invitational.

To celebrate this milestone, the inaugural INK Miami Invitational will reflect the Fair’s emphasis on showcasing the vibrancy of printmaking as an artistic medium.

INK Miami is unique among satellite fairs of Art Basel Miami Beach for its exclusive focus on works on paper. Founded in 2006 by the International Fine Print Dealers Association, INK Miami is anchored by IFPDA members, with each year’s exhibitor roster curated to present a diverse survey of 20th century masterworks and just-published editions by leading contemporary artists.

Over the past decade, the Fair has developed an established following, offering an important opportunity for curators and committed collectors of works on paper. The Fair has distinguished itself by the quality of its works and exhibitors, as well as its lush open-air courtyard, with surrounding suites transformed into uniquely defined gallery spaces.

Major highlights of this year's fair include:

- A monochromatic, starkly architectural lithograph by renowned 20th Century American painter and printmaker Louis Lozowick titled 'Subway Station (NYC)' (1936), at Susan Teller Gallery.
- 'A World in a Box' (2015) by Mark Dion, a suite of 27 prints—including lithography, cyanotype, digital, screenprint, etching, letterpress and woodcut—collected in a custom oak wood storage box, presented by contemporary publisher Graphicstudio/U.S.F.
- Bold new print works, including lithographs by Faith Ringgold and Maria Tomesula, etchings by Emmi Whitehorse and Enrique Chagoya, and a polymer etching with chine collè by Carrie Mae Weems, at contemporary publisher Segura Arts Studio.
- New works by seminal American pop and conceptual artists, including 'The Cottonwoods at Night' (2015), a collagraph print by Jim Dine, a series of etchings by Michelle Grabner, and a group of mixed media lithographs exploring everyday forms by Dan Rizzie, presented by Tandem Press.

The 2015 Fair opens Wednesday, December 2 at 9am with a breakfast preview at the Suites of Dorchester, located just two blocks from the Miami Beach Convention Center. More information on INK Miami Art Fair can be found at inkartfair.com.
